LOCAL WEATHER

ASPECT COLLEGE CAMBRIDGE

One of the first things you should know about Cambridge is it's very flat. This is great for cycling and means that there are more bicycles per head of population than anywhere else in Britain. Unfortunately the bad news about being flat is that the wind just blows right across Cambridge and can be particularly forceful between October and April. A warm coat will therefore be useful and you better hold on to your hat!

But it's not all bad news. I suppose you think that England is a very rainy place. Compared to many parts of the world it is, but Cambridge is in fact the driest place in the country. That said you may still find an umbrella comes in useful because when it rains, it really does rain. Don't forget that wind which can whisk that umbrella away!

More good news; not only does Cambridge have the least rain, it's also a sunny place compared to many parts of the country, so even in November and December we are lucky to have lots of bright days. If you come May to September we hope that you will have lots of sunshine and warm days. But don't forget that the English weather is described as "changeable". Even in August you may get three seasons in one day. But hey, what do you want? After all you are coming to experience typical England.
